SHE HAD THE ROCKS.
There was a pretty Mrs. Blank.
Who had a profit sweet.
Her name, too, was up to date.
Indeed, she was quite.

She had a way of making friends
That caught the eye of all.
Indeed, all fell in love with her.
They simply just had to.

And scandal never had a word
To say about her life.
While Mr. Blank and Mrs. Blank
Seemed most content with life.

But what surprised the ladies most
Was how this woman dined.
Indeed, she ate the whole parade.
'Twas scandalously confessed.

Why, when she came into the church
The choir all went flat.
The women felt so out of style
When they saw her swell hat.

Now, all these anxious women knew
Her husband wasn't rich.
They all were puzzled how she could
Dress at such a high pitch.

So a committee went around
To call on Mrs. Blank.
To get from her a tip or two
How to attain such rank.

She led them to her chicken coop
And showed them her fine flocks.
The mystery there at once lay bare—
She had fine flocks of ducks.

O Rocks, O Rocks, that fill egg crooks,
You best the band, you do.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS
Q. I had so many chicks dead in the shell last season and wish to ask which part of the hatch the germ is most liable to injury from shock—too much heat or cold?

A. The first week, especially for shock, eighth to twelfth day for extremes of heat and cold.

Q. Does it injure a show bird to let her hatch?

A. No. After such a rest a hen is healthier, a better layer, breeder, molts and lays sooner and is in better shape for show.

Q. Do you help little chicks out of the shell?

A. Very seldom and only when we see that dryness prevents chick from escaping. The chicks can't get out are generally upside down, motionless or very weak and amount to nil.

Q. After a chick picks the egg how soon should it come out?

A. In five to ten hours; quickest under heat.

Q. I recently set an incubator with 150 eggs and got twenty-two chicks. There were sixty infertile and sixty-two rotten eggs, and six eggs were broken during hatch. How many of the eggs were fertile?

A. Eighty-four. Infertile eggs are never rotten during a hatch. The sixty-two eggs may have been chills. It's a wonder you got any chicks with that many spoiled eggs unless you tested them out as the hatch progressed.

Q. I understand some people use cream and brownness from their show birds' plumage with hydrogen peroxide. How do they apply it? Does it cause injury?

A. This is a faker's trick. You must buy from vendors of "poultry secrets," so slick. Peroxide does not bleach out brass, but it bleaches the yellow from beak and legs and makes the feathers so brittle that any judge may discover the trick by simply rubbing and bending the feathers. It also causes temporary suffering.

Q. I set an incubator and hen on the same date. The hen hatched her chicks in twenty-one days, and the machine hatched in nineteen days. Will you explain?

A. The hen hatched O. K., but you ran your incubator too hot, and its forced chicks will likely be weaklings.

Q. How do you get broody hens to adopt incubator chicks? I fail in nearly every instance.

A. The hen must have been broody for a week or so. In the afternoon put chicks under her on nest and make it dark. Then they will get acquainted, and the next morning take them off and feed, giving the hen a little corn and chick feed together. By this plan we have had hens take chicks a week old.

DON'TS.
Don't try to bury property by any method that will make what you gain a source of pain or peril to others. There goes a business blunder.

Don't ridicule the farmer as a "punkhead." He looks from nature unto nature's God as he plows up the sweet green sod. He turns that furrow in the field that earth may for you sweet bread yield.

Don't look upon the city man as a stick up. For these folk and the dust and noise of wish for quiet country joys and look upon the husbandman as brother in the one great class.

Don't sit up prophesying against you self by running down another's product. If his stock is not folks will see it. If his eggs are not folks will see it.

THE MUSCOVY DUCK.
"John, John, pointed Maria, 'The old duck's pitting her ducklings into the creek, and they'll all get drowned!'"
Sure enough, she was right. And the old Muscovy grunted the last of the duck-bill by the creek and dived her over the bank.

Gentle reader, if your old duck does the same must not risk your life to save the little rubbernecks. Mauma Muscovy is just giving them their first swimming lesson. And don't be surprised if she flies in the house and, stocklike, builds her nest on the chimney, in South America, where they are wild, they nest in the highest trees.

They lay fifty greenish eggs a season. Incubation requiring about six weeks.

Drakes weigh from ten to twelve pounds and ducks from six to eight.

They are pure white or glossy blue black and white.

They lay large quantities on their face, like a turkey, and often must have, but butters may pick them right up.

The drakes are great fighters. When angry they raise their crest, wiggle their tails, hiss and charge.

They are the oddest, most ornamental and finest table ducks.

"Not fit to eat," replies Mrs. Know-it-all. "Our first Muscovy duck was lost from us."

She led them to her chicken coop and showed them her fine flocks. The mystery there at once lay bare—She had fine flocks of ducks.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.
If you have duck eggs for sale there is a market for them among the Hebrew population in the cities. They bring more than 11,000 eggs and send a reliable egg firm will bring information as to prices and shipping.

As a proof that it pays to feed green in the winter, the Virginia experiment station 100 best green eggs with their grain and meat ration laid 11,402 eggs and the total 100 on an exclusive grain and meat ration laid 9,930.

An egg eater will pick at a china egg and eat it. In New England, the time when a hen sits at it and walk away in disgust. After that she'll likely not bother her eggs. Just like the duck, she'll eat it and give it a good kick.

Blackhead has not only destroyed nearly all the duckers in New England, but a similar disease has spread to quail, and the Massachusetts and game commission is investigating the matter, as are Dr. Theobald Smith and Dr. E. R. Taylor of Harvard medical school and Dr. Philip Hadley of the Rhode Island experiment station.

When you are sure your fowl have cholera and you wish to kill the bacteria that gets into the drinking water, use stone fountain, in which you put corals or sublimate, 1 part to 1,500 parts water.

In England the "Chanticleer" brand has so caught the women that "crazy baronesses," in the shape of big roosters with red combs, are worn for hats. If it just reaches this side and our girls buy our big roosters at an Easter bazaar price, oh, how nice!

The duck and hen's eggs are 5 cents and bird's eggs come in free. A faulter importing eggs received a decision from Washington as to whether a hen is a bird or what. The decision was on deliberation it was decided that a hen is a bird, but as she is a hen also the duty must be paid. The fellow who made that decision is a bird also, maybe a crow.

When Antoinette Miller, a girl of fifteen, N. Y., drank bicarbonate of mercury, in mistake her mother gave her a quart of warm water and then, thinking to the street, held up a grocer's bag and secured five dozens of eggs. She gave the whites of these eggs to the girl and saved her life. Just twenty minutes later and her daughter would have been dead. Better cut this out and keep eggs handy.

THE THREE GEORGES.
There are three King Georges: George V, of Great Britain and Ireland, George I, of Greece and Georgia, and George III, of the United States. The last named is a little more than a nominal sovereign, but he is still on the roll of reigning monarchs. Since the late Lord Salisbury (just International deal the "Yankee" archbishop in the Pacific has been a British protectorate. The Pacific King George is very fond of playing croquet.—Chicago News.

DECAY AND DIRT.

These seem to be the prevailing conditions in China.

"Along the road—and this is characteristic of the whole country—there are the festering corners of the London Times." It is the national failing to spend nothing on repairs, to build and then leave the building to fall gradually into decay and ruin. Nor is anything cleaned, and the squares or that a feature even of the imperial palaces is found in a filthy condition. A few miles out of Honsan there is a fine stone bridge of five arches, but the piers are falling away, the parapet has disappeared, and the flagstones with which it is paved have great gaps and hollows, so that the cart rumbles and crashes and bumps across it in a way that would break any but a Chinese springless cart. To repair is no one's business."

At another stage in his journey he remarks: "Perhaps to some extent the anticipated coming of a railway, which will kill the present cart traffic, may save the shocking condition of the native lane. With railway extension in the air there is no inducement for the hawker to spend money on the upkeep of his road. Not so, if he is paired. Their filthy and squalid are amazing. In the inn yard the wall has its mouth below the level of the soil, so that water which is spilled there flows back into the well and carry with it the surface drainage."

"A doctor might notice the prevalence of consumption. To the universal habit of expectoration on the floor, the exclusion of air and the absence of drainage this prevalence must be due."

OILING THE ATLANTIC.

Proposed Plan to Smooth the Passage to Europe.

Pouring oil on the troubled waters will be much more than a metaphor if a plan offered by the United States hydrographic office is carried out. Its serious proposal is to keep the path between New York and the northern European ports well oiled so that the waves may be kept down and passengers may cross in perfect comfort.

The hydrographic office knows a lot about waves and claims that nothing is so bad for a ship as oil. Moreover, oil spreads quickly and thinly over the water, and hence the calming can be done at small expense. A quart of cheap kerosene an hour for oil ship would, they say, do the work in direct weather, and $25 per trip ought to cover it easily. With the big liners constantly making the port, carrying away by the ocean currents would be restored without delay.

Maybe some day we shall have a wrecking crew to push rubber wheels in the oil track. Meanwhile the hydrographic office will need more than crude oil to calm the waves of the Atlantic. The plan of the office is to use kerosene, but they have never yet seen an ocean that would hold still long enough to be oiled.—Success Magazine.

Arctic Magnetism.
The campaign for the extension of our knowledge of the magnetism of the earth is to be extended into the arctic regions during Captain Amundsen's next expedition, which is to start from Norway this summer in Nansen's former ship, the Fram.

An American observer, Dr. H. H. Amundsen, has been selected to accompany the expedition for this special purpose. Amundsen's plan is to enter the polar sea by way of Arctic strait and send drift with the ice. While it is not his special object to attain the pole, he hopes that the course of the drift may lead him across or close to it. The increase of geographical knowledge is his aim, and he expects to be absent about four years.—Youth's Companion.

The New Maritain Canals.
In a recent bulletin issued by his observatory, Percival Lowell describes his newly discovered Maritain canals. These new canals are two in number and were discovered Sept. 30, 1900, to the east of the Syr Darya River, where no canals have previously been known. They were most conspicuous. Not a trace of them could be found in the records of previous years. He regards the evidence as strong that the canals are not simply new to astronomers, but new to Mars. Measurement of their dimensions show that they are 1,000 miles long and some twenty miles wide. The Canyon of the Colorado would be a secondary affair in comparison.

King Solomon's Treasure.
In an effort to find King Solomon's treasure and the crown of David, a party of Englishmen, led by the Earl of Morley's heir presumptive and a near relative of the Duke of Fife, are excavating at the foot of Mount Eliza, near the city of Jerusalem.

The members of the Turkish parliament are continually present, this being one of the conditions laid down by the authorities before permission to begin the excavation was given. Large sums of money were spent in obtaining the permit, in purchasing land and in carrying on the work. More than sixty men are engaged at a weekly expense of more than $4,000.

The Three Georges.
There are three King Georges: George V, of Great Britain and Ireland, George I, of Greece and Georgia, and George III, of the United States.

The last named is a little more than a nominal sovereign, but he is still on the roll of reigning monarchs. Since the late Lord Salisbury (just International deal the "Yankee" archbishop in the Pacific has been a British protectorate. The Pacific King George is very fond of playing croquet.—Chicago News.

RAPE FOR FORAGE.

Not For Milk Cows, but Excellent For Dry Cattle, Sheep and Hogs.

I have given rape a thorough trial and have found it a most valuable food for stock. It is a most valuable part of the ration of the providing pasture until late in the fall and also because it is very useful in the winter as a food for sheep and hogs. The rape seed of the Orange Judd Farmer. It does not, however, provide a proper food for milk cows owing to its favoring the milk and butter somewhat similarly to turnip tops. But as food for dry cattle, sheep and hogs it is most excellent, furnishing an abundant pasture from the middle of July until very late in the fall if cattle are given their liberty.

The expense of growing rape is very trifling, as the seed costs but a few cents per bushel.

SINGS ITS DEATH SONG.

A Peculiar Bird Found in the Jungles of South America.

There is a queer bird in the jungles of northern South America which is called the "pauli" by the natives, but is known to science as the painted curassow. It is chiefly remarkable because it sings its own death song. It does not really sing, but makes a deep humming noise which sounds very much like the Spanish words "El muerto está aquí" (the corpse is here). "It is while uttering this ludicrous chant," said a South American traveler, "that the pauli usually moves its drooping wings and then it easily tracks it to its retreat, and it falls a victim, as the ludicrous say, to its own death song."

If the pauli goes suspicious it immediately ceases humming, and it is a sure indication to the hunter that the bird has seen him or some danger. It is a case of the only thing for the sportsman to do is to remain perfectly still. The bird may become reassured after waiting a while and again begin its humming. The corpse lies here. "It is then he cautiously approached and killed."

If it is only wounded the pauli usually escapes, though it is a much better than the ordinary domestic fowl. It is very fast of foot and will outrun the hunter until it is lost in the dense undergrowth of the jungle.

In the mating season the male pauli is the most passionate of birds and will fight his own kind whenever it meets them. Often the fight ends in the annihilation of both combatants.

SALVE FOR HIS WOUND.
A Strenuous Game That Was Not on the Bill of the Play.

Giovanni Grasso, a Sicilian actor of unusual dramatic energy, was playing Flaminio in one of his recent plays, where he had to stab his enemy with a dagger. Suddenly, in the heat of his passion, Grasso let the weapon slip out of his hand and it landed on the pit on a man's head, cutting it slightly.

An audience member of the audience flung the knife back to the stage, where it caught Giovanni Grasso. Raising it aloft in his hand and as if it were a sword, Grasso smashed it in two and then stamped upon it.

Then, with a swift bound, Grasso was in the pit beside the injured man. The next minute he had climbed back to the boards, with the victim in his arms.

After setting him in a chair Grasso threw himself on his knees and began a long utterance for forgiveness. This was rapidly granted by the much surprised audience, who on his knee begged to be allowed to return to his seat.

But this was not to be until Grasso, reaching up, had taken from his pocket a few shillings, which he handed to the man's family, as a reward for his services.

The action was greeted with loud cheers, and the Grasso had gracefully bowed his thanks the play was resumed and successfully concluded.—London Express.

Perils of the Hair Cut.
"Ouch!" cried the barber and something else, as he was cutting a customer's hair, when he felt a sharp blow on his thumb in his mouth and began sucking it.

"Cut yourself?" asked the man in the chair.

"No, it's an ingrowing hair," replied the barber.

"No, it's an ingrowing hair under my thumb nail," replied the customer.

The man said the barber laughed.

"Fart," said the barber. "It isn't an uncommon thing either. In giving a customer a hair cut a bit of hair often lodges under the thumb nail and if it isn't removed it is apt to fester and get sore. Sometimes we don't even know it's there until it begins to get in its way. The hair is like the dickens sometimes. If you don't believe me, ask any barber and he'll tell you the same thing."—New York Times.

A Gun Club's Treasure.
Thirty million cartridges, the result of eleven years of shooting by the members of a gun club, have been gathered into a huge pile by one of the leading sporting organizations of England. Eleven years ago one of the members conceived the idea of having the members save all their shells and deposit them on the pile. The shell bank is now the club's most prized possession. If a single man were to shoot one cartridge a second day and night it would take him about twenty-five years to discharge it.

The club maintains a vigilant guard over its precious shell pile.

Filial Rejoice.
Richard Brien, a Canadian, was always distressed for money, was one day giving his son a lesson in the matter when he was turned to his eldest son and said:

"Tom, if you open any more eyes we'll have a razor hit you off with a shilling."

"Very well, father," said Tom, "but where will you get the shilling?"

The Prize Holder.
"I understand you have a fine track team here," said the visitor to the man who was showing him over the college grounds. "What individual holds most of the medals?"

"The team captain," answered the guide after due deliberation.—New York Journal.

BLAIRMORE LODGE, NO. 68

Of Independent Order of Odd Fellows Instituted on Tuesday

HAD A SPLENDID TIME

Grand Master Presides-- Large Attendance--Good Supper--Bright Future

The institution of a subordinate lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and known as Blairmore lodge, No. 68, took place in the Mercantile hall, Blairmore, on Tuesday evening last.

Grand Master, W. G. Shera, of Fort Saskatchewan, was present and presided at the institution and was assisted by J. A. Tully, acting as deputy grand master.

At 5 p.m. the members of the order who had applied to the grand lodge of Alberta for a charter, met in the Mercantile hall, and opened the second I. O. O. F. lodge in the Pass. On the arrival of the westbound "local" at 6.30 p.m., which brought a degree team from Pincher Creek, the initiation service commenced and twenty-seven candidates received admission into Blairmore lodge, No. 68, of I. O. O. F. and became members of the strongest fraternal organization in the world today and which had its beginning at the house of William Lupton, sign of the Seven Stars, Second Street, Baltimore, Maryland, on the 26th day of April, 1819.

Shortly after the arrival of the members from Pincher Creek, about thirty members were driven down from Coleman to put on the first, second and third degrees. This of course, involved a great deal of work and took up considerable time.

At 12 p.m., after the initiatory degree had been put on, those present were informed that supper was ready and about ninety members of the order assembled at the Alberta hotel where the genial proprietor, John Carroll, had a bounteous supply of appetizing things nicely arranged on the tables and everything was ready for the inner man. Many said that it was the best supper they ever had.

After this dainty supper had been freely partaken of the members returned to the lodge room where the first, second and third degrees were put on by Coleman teams. At 4 a.m. a happy gathering dispersed, everyone being well satisfied and admitting that they had just taken part in one of the greatest events ever known in this district.

May Blairmore lodge, No. 68, of Independent Order of Odd Fellows, flourish and always endeavor—

"To meliorate the sorrows of mankind, Relieve the poor, the sick, the maim, the blind; Lift up the drooping heart," the widow cheer, And wipe away the helpless orphan's tear.

To form of men one wide-spread Brotherhood Linked only in the bonds of doing good."

The following are the first officers elected for Blairmore lodge, No. 68, I. O. O. F.:

Noble grand, Rev. J. F. Hunter, Vice grand, George Young, Recording secretary, J. D. S. Barrett, Financial sec., Dr. J. W. McKay
